Guide to the Best Wines of France. La revue du vin de France 2024

"In just a few years, Félix Meyer has built up a solid reputation in Alsace. This is no coincidence: the viticulture is of the highest quality, with very carefully monitored yields, and the wines are vinified on fine lees in large tuns. Félix joined the family estate in 1992, and brings out the best in Katzenthal's granite terroirs. Don't overlook his Gewurztraminer, which is not at all heavy and has a crystalline purity, winning over even the detractors of this grape variety, which is too often pigeon-holed. The estate has expanded by 3.5 hectares in 2019, and 2021 will see the arrival of organic certification.

The wines: the magnificent integrity of the grapes and the freshness preserved in the excellent Pinot Noir, whose full-bodied but nuanced expression extends into a powdery, penetrating length. The Rieslings are excellent, Pfoeller taut and salty, Mandelberg, with its still strict acidity, evokes yellow-fleshed fruit and nutmeg, and Kaefferkopf is subtle and refined. Our preference goes to Wineck-Schlossberg, very intense and accomplished, pure and airy, and Schoenenbourg, refined, vibrant and caressing. The pinot gris Dorfburg is very dry, lively and spicy, while the cuvée Eloi has a well-balanced mellowness tempered by a very lively sap. The radiant Furstentum gewurztraminer is an eloquent wine for laying down: the liveliness of its sugars, the intensity of its citrus flavours and the quality of its bitters will reward patient wine-lovers. More concentration is found in Sporen Vieilles Vignes, with its swirling finish.
